

• DATA PRIVACY &amp; PROTECTION

GDPR Readiness Made Practical with Calvant

A structured, automated approach to achieving and sustaining General Data Protection Regulation compliance without the chaos of spreadsheets, siloed teams, or reactive consultants.

OVERVIEW

What is GDPR?

The General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) is a legally binding privacy framework enacted by the European Union to protect individuals' fundamental rights over their personal data. It applies to any organisation worldwide regardless of physical location, that collects, processes, stores, or monitors the personal information of EU or EEA citizens and residents.

This impacts everything from high-growth B2B SaaS platforms handling customer databases to global enterprises managing cross-border employee records. Within these organisations, GDPR is utilised daily by Data Protection Officers (DPOs), legal counsel, security teams, and engineering leaders to enforce structural workflows around user rights, data mapping, and vendor risk oversight.

Maintaining continuous GDPR compliance is a vital commercial necessity designed to prevent regulatory fines of up to 4% of global annual turnover, eliminate data-handling liabilities, and unlock friction-free enterprise sales cycles by providing absolute digital trust.

THE CHALLENGE

Why GDPR is hard to manage every day

Organisations don't struggle to understand what GDPR is. They struggle to manage it continuously across systems, teams, vendors, and operations. Manual spreadsheets, shared folders, and email approvals create a fragmented compliance posture that becomes difficult to track and audit at scale.

As privacy obligations grow, managing consent, data subject requests, processing records, and third-party risks manually becomes increasingly challenging. Without centralized visibility and structured workflows, compliance gaps often remain unnoticed until an audit or regulatory review.

Move from fragmented and reactive to unified and proactive GDPR Compliance

Data mapping complexity

Tracking personal data across cloud apps, internal systems, customer platforms, and vendors is near-impossible without automated discovery.

Data Subject Rights pressure

Access, deletion, and consent requests must be handled quickly. Without a central workflow, responses become inconsistent and hard to audit.

Vendor management at scale

Evaluating vendors, maintaining DPAs, and verifying third-party data handling is unmanageable as your vendor list grows.

Cross-team accountability gaps

Legal, engineering, HR, security, and support all share GDPR responsibility — but without a unified platform, controls become inconsistent.

Document sprawl

Policies, records, and assessments spread across teams with no clear ownership — making it impossible to know what's current and what's not.

Reactive compliance culture

Hiring consultants helps with assessments but creates dependence on external experts rather than building continuous, internal compliance.

OUR APPROACH

How Calvant solves it

Calvant replaces fragmented, manual GDPR management with a unified, automated compliance platform giving every stakeholder a clear view of their responsibilities and the evidence to prove it.

1 Centralising Data Privacy Operations

Unify teams, workflows, and GDPR controls in one centralized platform.

2 Automating Continuous Data and PII Mapping

Automatically discover, track, and map PII across systems and applications.

3 Streamlining Data Subject Rights (DSAR) workflows

Manage access, deletion, and consent requests through automated workflows.

4 Centralizing Vendor Risk & Data Protection Agreements

Unify teams, workflows, and GDPR controls in one centralized platform.

5 Maintaining a Continuous, Audit-Ready Evidence Locker

Continuously collect and maintain compliance evidence in one secure repository.
